Excerpt: .to take to my bed, nor to omit one public service, though it has been very difficult for me to keep about, and more difficult for nie to preach. He says cupping and blistering may ease the pain in the side, and allay the cough, but that a thorough change of air, such as a voyage to Bermuda or England, would be preferable; At four o'clock the work on places near had already begun, and the Governor, who had mustered a detachment of Colonial cavalry, and with some other Government officials had proceeded up the coast, met about forty armed negroes, to whom, in a parley, he then and for the first time communicated the chief particulars of what, in his own disobedience to the home Government, he had so long kept back. But the little crowd distrusted him; would not lay down their arms; one at last firing his musket at the Governor, who thereupon immediately began a return to town. It was six o'clock when Mr. Smith got first intimation of the intended rising. As he and his devoted partner were preparing to take a short walk, a note was delivered which had been brought by one Guildford from Dochfour, an estate fourteen miles higher up the coast. It was written and signed by a fellow-slave, Jackey Reed, who, complaining of a note he had received from Jack Gladstone, and which he enclosed; that in it Jack Gladstone (Jack had...
