Magnetic Survey of Wurtemberg.--Work on this survey, under the direction of Professor August Schmidt, will be begun during present summer. The magnetic elements will be determined at sixty stations, by Professor Haussmann, of Aix-la-Chapelle, using instruments of the Eschenhagen pattern, as made by Tesdorf, of Stuttgart. The variation observations of declination and horizontal intensity will be carried on during the interval of the survey, at a temporary observatory in Stuttgart, equipped with the Eschenhagen variation instruments. 2. Magnetic Survey of the Azores.--Captain F. A. Chaves writes that the magnetic survey of the Azores was begun last year, and that he has established at Ponta Delgada a declinometer for eye-readings, with the aid of which he will reduce the field observations to the same moment of time. 3-Magnetic Work in fapan.--In Japan, complete photographic registrations of the variations of magnetic elements are now being continuously made at the Central Meteorological Observatory, and the four stations belonging to the Earthquake Investigation Committee, viz.: Latitude Longitude North) (E. ofGr.)
